Q: JavaFx FXML component setters and getters I am new to JavaFx and FXML programming. Is there any difference between setXXX and getXXX in FXML? If so, how to use getXXX and setXXX when we want to call setXXX. Thanks in advance. A: No there is no difference as they are both accessor methods in the FXML class. As for the usage of setXXX and getXXX, you use the accessor methods to call setXXX to set a property and getXXX to get the property. For example: FXMLLoader loader = new FXMLLoader(getClass().getResource("MyFXML.fxml")); Parent root = loader.load(); MyFXML myFXML = loader.getController(); myFXML.setSomeProperty(10); You access the property like so: int someProperty = myFXML.getSomeProperty(); Q: check if a day has changed How do I check if a day has changed from its previous values? I'm trying to use ifelse but the problem is that I don't always end up with a change. Here's an example of a dataset I'm trying to work with. It's a time series dataset. day df set.seed(10) > df day val 1 1 6 2 1 5 3 1 5 4 1 7 5 1 8 6 1 10 7 2 2 8 2

The Eraser tool is used to remove objects or other elements from an image. It is often used to erase parts of a photo or to create an effect, like a pixel brush. Image Effects like Lo-Key can be used to create graphical effects using a palette of photo-like images to alter the look of an image. Fireworks: Photoshop comes with the Fireworks program. This is used to create graphics for creating websites and web-based media. The Brush tool in Photoshop allows you to control brush size, opacity and softness. You can also resize the brush while holding down the left mouse button to save changes. To create special effects you can use the Pencil tool which allows you to draw lines, shapes, and paint in very precise, free-hand strokes. The eraser tool can be used for retouching. It erases unnecessary parts of an image. You can also retouch specific areas, including people's faces and eyes. Grass: The Grass tool allows you to transform a photo into a silhouette of a person. Other If you just want to paint something you will need the Paint brush, the Pen tool and Text tool. The pen tool allows you to draw free-hand lines. Paint is an even simpler tool that allows you to make your own color. If you have a tablet or smartphone, or if you have a Bluetooth Keyboard, the tools you use to draw and paint aren't like the ones found in Photoshop. However, in iOS you don't need to worry about choosing the right tools to create an artistic masterpiece. There are very powerful and unique drawing apps in the App Store that can take your artistic creations to a whole new level. Pencil: iOS came with the pencil tool (pencils and highlighters). There are many other highlighters available that are similar to the pencil tool, like Highlighter Pro. Paint: Paint can be found in various drawing apps on iOS. Some of the most interesting apps are called Fun Paint and Inkwell. Font: iOS comes with a lot of free fonts, and even some paid ones. The free ones are very useful for creating artistic and typographic designs. However, iOS users will also enjoy using the SmartArt tool or other apps on their App Store.
